Pterodactyl Causes Prehistoric Pandemonium at School

NEW YORK: When a boy brings his pterodactyl to school for show-and-tell, hilarious havoc ensues.

The dinosaur's delightfully demented antics, the kids' expressions as they try to avoid the hungry pterodactyl, and the out-of-control imagination of the boy yield a wild and wacky romp.

Author Thad Krasnesky (That Cat Can't Stay, and I Always, ALWAYS Get My Way) taps into the impossible childhood wish to bring a dinosaur to school, allowing readers to safely enjoy the laugh-out-loud logical conclusion: classroom chaos.

Written in rhyming couplets, Pterodactyl Show and Tell teems with edgy school-age humor and giggle-inducing illustrations. Kids who dig dinosaurs will devour this preposterous pterodactyl tale.

Thad Krasnesky is a writer of children's stories trapped in the body of an army major. He served five tours of duty in Iraq and Afghanistan as an active duty intelligence officer in the US Army. He lives in Lansing, KS, and this is his third picture book.

Tanya Leonello has an MFA in medical illustration, and specialized in scientific illustration for over 15 years. Her second career as a mother inspired her to create art for children's picture books. Tanya lives in Dexter, MI.
